GOV. ODELL ALSO DISAPPROVES THE APGAR BILL.

suggests an Extra Session to Legislate on the Tunnel-The Bedell Bill Imperfect in Form and Would Be a Menace to Cities Affected - Ample Power to Accomplish the Object Sought Already Lodged in the Municipality.

ALBANY, April 18.-Gov. Odell has vetoed Assemblyman Bedell's New York Central Park Avenue Tunnel Terminal Extension bill, and Assemblyman Apgar's bill, providing that the motive power used to operate cars in the tunnel shall be changed from steam to electricity. While the Bedell Terminal bill affected cities of the first class, t was aimed to permit an enlargement of the Grand Central Station facilities in New York city. In his veto, the Governor suggests an extra session of the Legislature pass new legislation on the tunnel terminal question, but the extra session, if desired, could not be held until the Governor's return from his California trip on May 23. In vetoing these two bills, Gov. Odell filed a memorandum giving these reasons for his action: These two bills are the outgrowth of a desire to render passenger traffic safe upon the New York Central, the New York, New Haven and Hartford and the Harlem railways. While it is contended by the rail-road officials that they have done everything in their power and within the law to properly safeguard the lives of the millions of pasengers who traverse these lines yearly, yet public demand has found its expression in the bills now under consideration, the first pro-viding that the use of steam within the Park avenue tunnel in the city of New York shall be discontinued within three years unless further time shall be granted by the State Board of Railroad Commissioners; and the second, which is in the form of a general law applicable to cities of the first class, aims to give the railroad company the right to acquire by condemnation, purchase or otherwise such land as it may need in, under and over the streets required for the improvement of its terminal facilities.

In the event of a disagreement between he railroads and the local authorities, it is provided that an appeal may be taken to the State Board of Railroad Commissioners and the determination of the board, subect to review by the Appellate Division of both as to route and compensation for the use of the streets within the city aforesaid. In other words, by the terms of the two bills. ead together, the initiative would be in the read together, the initiative would be in the city and the final determination in the State Board of Railroad Commissioners.

The converse of this unique condition is found in the so-called Pennsylvania Tunnel bill, where the Rapid Transit Commission has the initiative, while the city has the final determination and decision. The reason given for the power conferred upon the Rapid Transit Commission in the Pennsylvania Tunnel bill was that under the Rapid Transit law this commission is constructing a system of subways in the city of New York, to be ultimately owned by the city, and that to prevent any interference with their routes and in the construction of their tunnel it was necessary to give them some restrictive power. When that bill was before me I had serious doubt as to whether it did not confer functions upon the Rapid Transit Commission not originally designed by the law which created that body, but th view of explanations made upon the hearing I concluded to approve the bill. In this case, however, the conditions are different. It is conceded that the proposed law can affect but two cities, New York and Buffalo. It is also a fact that the main object of the bill is to permit the construction of a safer entrance into the New York Central terminal and that of its allied companies in the city of New York We may therefore consider it affecting New York city alone.

TO DIG UP A THOUSAND GRAVES. Plan in Brooklyn to Move Old Graveyard, Headstones and All.

There is a movement in Brooklyn looking to the removal of the remains of about a thousand old inhabitants of that borough buried in the little graveyard adjoining the Pro-Cathedral at Jayand Chapel streets. The last interment in the graveyard took place more than fifty years ago. Some of the relatives of the dead are in favor of having the remains, with the headstones, removed to St. John's Cemetery at Newtown and placed in exactly the same relative positions that they occupy at present.

J. H. Farrell, an undertaker, who has relatives buried in the graveyard, says that this plan is generally favored by those interested. The city has provided for a park between Jay and Bridge streets, and the plan is to have it take in the site of the CIRCUS CLOWN TAKES A WIFE.

JUST WENT OUT BETWEEN PER-FORMANCES AND WAS WEDDED.

Ob, but He Was Funny Afterward, Always Looking at One Little Bit of the Audience-And If Folks Had Only Known Why It Would Have Been Funuler Still.

"Slivers." the clown at the circus who always looks as though somebody had grabbed him by the seat of the trousers and stretched them two feet horizontally, and who causes the stretched extension to do things which in anybody but Slivers would seem unseemly, has been greatly embarrassed by an article printed in THE SUNDAY SUN telling of his gentle ways and his troubles

Shoals of girls, some naughty and some merely foolish took to writing to Slivers, whose real name is Frank Oakley, telling him how much they sympathized with him and suggesting ways in which his troubles might be alleviated. Nellie Dunbar, who is a song and dance young woman, and one of the three sisters of that name who have been amusing vaudeville patrons for several years has known Slivers for a long time. She went over to the circus from her Brooklyn theatre on Thursday to see some of her women friends and she met Slivers behind the scenes

She had been a friend of his for severa years, so naturally, he asked why she never wrote to him any more. She said she didn't have to. Slivers handed out a package of the silly letters from girls he didn't age of the silly letters from girls he didn't know and repeated;

"You don't have to."
For some reason Miss Dunbar was displeased. She said things expressive of her displeasure—lots of things. She grew positively bitter. She never thought he was the sort of a man to let girls write that sort of letters to him. Slivers stood on one foot and then on the other. The other circus folks who saw him say that he was funnier just then than he ever was on the tanbark.

"Well," he said at last, and blushed,
"there's only one way to stop it."
"What is it?" asked Miss Dunbar.

"What is it?" asked Miss Dunbar.

Slivers blushed some more.

"What is it?" repeated Miss Dunbar.

"Well," said Slivers. Then he stopped short. Then he began again with a rush.

"Well," he said, "if I was married—to you, I mean—they wouldn't write any more. Say, will you?"

It was the young woman's turn to blush. Slivers led her around behind the big hay wagon on which the clowns perform right after the opening parade and repeated the question.

"I can't now," she said, after a while.

"I have a matinée this afternoon."

Slivers said the matinée didn't affect the main issue. He had a matinee himself. There was time between the matinée and the evening performance wasn't there?

the main issue. He had a matinee himself.
There was time between the matinee and the evening performance wasn't there? She hadn't thought of that. Then he wouldn't let her go to Brooklyn until she had promised to come back.

At 5 o'clock Jim West, another clown, and Mrs. West met Slivers at the back door of the Garden and went down town and met Miss Dunbar. Then they all went to the Rev. Mr. Haas of the Christian Church en Second avenue, and Slivers and the young woman were married. Then they came back to the Garden and Slivers put on his rear extension trousers, and his yellow and blue jersey, and his cone-shaped hat and pranced out into the arena.

Patrons at the Thursday evening performance may have noticed that whenever Slivers came out of the south entrance to the arena he stopped short and stared for minutes together in his fool clown way at somebody near the edge of the tan-bark. He would turn back and stare, no matter where he was in the arena at that same spot. He stared until people all through the south side of the Garden were scream-

WEST INDIES WOULD JOIN US. So Says Sir Nevlle Lubbock - Blacks Only Loyal to Britain.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUS. LONDON, April 18.-In an interview today Sir Nevile Lubbock, Chairman of the West India Committee, said it was doubtful whether the subsidy of £250,000 would benefit the West Indies greatly. He doubted if the late repentance of the Imperial Government would be able to eradicate the recollection of years of neglect.

He added that he felt confident that if the whites were polled a majority in the British West Indies and Demerara would be in favor of joining the United States owing to their gratitude for the American countervailing duty on bounty-fed sugar. The blacks, however, were more loyal. Their disinclination to be under the Stars and Stripes is probably the chief cause that would prevent the British West Indies from joining the United States.

AMENDED SO AS TO ABOLISH DIF-

FERENTIAL DUTY ON SUGAR.

The United Vote of the Democrats and Beet Sugar Republicans Overrode the Ruling of the Chair Against the Amendment-The Bill as Amended Is Passed by a Vote of 247 to $2. WASHINGTON, April 18.-The action of the Democratic House caucus last night was reflected in the action of the House to-day, the united vote of the minority and of the beet sugar Republicans being sufficient to override the ruling of Chairman Sherman and attach an amendment to the Cuban Reciprocity bill abolishing the differential duty on refined sugar during the existence of the reciprocal treaty with Cuba.

With that amendment added to the bill it was passed, 247 to 52, the following being recorded in opposition: Republicans-Aplin of Michigan, Barney of Wisconsin, Bishop of Michigan, Bromwell of Ohio, Brown of Wisconsin, Coombs of Cali-fornia, Corliss of Michigan, Cushman of Washington, Dahle of Wisconsin, Darragh of Michigan, Dayton of West Virginia, Esch of Wisconsin, Fletcher of Minnesota, Fordney of Michigan, Gardner of Michigan, Grosvenor of Ohio, Hamilton of Michigan, Hep-burn of Iowa, Hildebrant of Ohio, Jones of Washington, Kahn of California, Littlefield of Maine, Loud of California, McCleary of Minnesota, McLachlan of California, Metcalf of California, Morris of Minnesota, Needham of California, Sheldon of Michigan, Smith of Illinois, H. C., Samuel W. and William Alden Swith of Michigan, Stevens of Minnesota, Tawney of Minnesota, Taylor, Warner and Tompkins of Ohio and Woods of California. Democrats and Populists—Breezeale, Brous-sard and Davey of Louisiana, Davis of Florida, Meyer of Louisiana, Neville of Nebraska, Ransdell of Louisiana, Robertson of Louisiana. Shafroth of Colorado and Sparkman of

As passed the bill reads:

Be it enacted, that for the purpose of securing reciprocal trade relations with Cuba, the President is hereby authorized, as soon as may be after the establishment of an in-dependent Government in Cuba and the enactment by said Government of immigration, exclusion and contract labor laws as fully restrictive of immigration as the laws of the United States, to enter into negotiations with said Government with a view to the arrangereciprocal and equivalent concessions may be secured in favor of the products and manu-factures of the United States by rates of duty which shall be less by an amount equivalent to at least 20 per cent ad valorem upon such products and manufactures than the rates imposed upon the like articles when imported into Cuba from the most favored of other countries, and which shall not be greater than the rates imposed by the United States upon the like articles imported from Cuba and whenever the Government of Cuba shall enact such immigration, exclusion and contract labor laws, and shall enter into such commercial agreement with the United States and shall make such concessions in favor of the products and manufactures thereof as aforesaid, and which agreement, in the judgment of the President, shall be reciprocal and equivalent, he shall be authorized to proclaim such facts, both as to the enactment of such immigration, exclusion and contract labor laws and the making of such agreement; and thereafter until the first day f December, 1903, the imposition of the duties now imposed by law on all articles im-ported from Cuba, the products thereof, into the United States shall be suspended, and in lieu thereof there shall be levied, collected and paid upon all such articles imported from Cuba 80 per centum now levied upon like articles imported from foreign countries.

The President shall have power, and it shall he his duty, whenever he shall be satisfied that either such immigration, exclusion or contract labor laws, or such agreement men tioned in this act, are not being fully executed by the Government of Cuba, to notify such overnment thereof, and thereafter shall be levied, collected and paid upon all articles imported from Cuba the full rate of duty provided by law upon articles imported from foreign countries.

And upon the making of said agreement and the issuance of said proclamation, and while said agreement shall remain in force there shall be levied, collected and paid in lieu of the duties thereon now provided by law on all sugars above number 16 Dutch standard in color, and on all sugar which has gone through a process of refining, imported into the United States one cent and $25 one-thousandths of one cent, per pound.

The combination was exerted only on the motion of Mr. Morris of Minnesota, to strike off the differential, all other amendments being either ruled out of order, or voted down by the entire Republican vote. It was shown first and most effectively in the committee of the whole, when, after Chairman Sherman of New York had ruled the amendment out of order, he was reversed on appeal taken by Mr. Morris, over thirty Republicans joining the Democrats in sustaining the appeal There was a majority of nearly 50 on that proposition, and a slightly larger one on the adoption of the amendment in the Mr Richardson (Dem , Tenn ), the mipority leader to the House, rose this morning to begin the last day's general debate on the Cubun Reciprocity bill. He said that if he had not believed the lati would ac complish the purpose expressed in its title he would never have consented to its presence in the House. He would not, however, have contented himself with the limit of reduction proposed by the wise men who had prepared the bill, but the measure being a step in the right direction he agreed with them that it nught to pass In framing the tell its Republican authors had planted themselves upon a Demo-erate principle and policy that of lowering the tariff.
